THE YOUNG WIDOW.

She is modest, she is bashful, Not but young, and not too off.
Half laviding half repulsing,
Now advantally, and now shy,
There is missiled in her dimpte,
There is danger to her eye.

She has studiled homen nature. She is achieved in all her arts.
She has taken for diploma.
As the metricus of all learns.
She say tell the very moment.
When to sigh and when to smile.

But a widow all the while

You are sud! how very perious Are yett anary! she is wreiched, Lonely, free-dless, tearful, damb; Are you mirthful; how her laughter, Si wer sounding, will ring out;

Ye old bachelors of ferty Who have grown so bold and wiss,
Young Americans of twenty,
With your lovelocks in your eyes,
You may pract be all the fessors
Tangut by Chyld since the fall,
But I know a little widow,
